School-Based Mental Health Program Lifting Up Student Well-Being

Since 2014, Mary's Center has been a trailblazer in bringing mental health support directly into schools. Over the past 11 years, we've helped thousands of students like Joshua who might not have received care otherwise. Joshua, a student at one of our School-Based Mental Health (SBMH)-partnered schools, struggled with increasing anxiety that caused frequent absences and impacted his life. Our SBMH clinician swiftly doubled therapy sessions, provided daily check-ins and crisis support, and connected Joshua's family with a psychiatric team for evaluation and medication. They also linked his parents to their own therapist, coordinated with teachers for coaching and a plan to ensure Joshua felt safe and supported. These efforts enabled him to attend school daily while accessing resources.

Our on-site therapists offer immediate emotional support, assist teachers with challenging situations, and connect families to essential resources—bridging education, healthcare, and social services to make mental health support more accessible and impactful for students.
